In this Edition

Another constitutional committee has been constituted by the government of Pakistan to review the legal status of the Gilgit-Baltistan region. Before this Sartaj Aziz committee had already presented its report to the then prime minister Nawaz Sharif., Pakistan has been continuously integrating the whole PoK region but there are still demands from the local populace particularly in Gilgit-Baltistan who want to come out from the constitutional limbo. There are also voices who are opposing any move from Pakistan to make Gilgit-Baltistan a province. Although, mainstream political parties are in favour of granting Gilgit-Baltistan constitutional status and making it a fifth province but they don't want to antagonise the PoK leadership who are opposing any such move.

Therefore, it is very unlikely that in the near future Pakistan is going to provide any full-fledged constitutional legality to Gilgit-Baltistan. But with CPEC going through the region and dilly-dallying the decision of providing legal identity, the resentment and alienation level can only grow in the region.

Jamil Nagri, “CAA team arrives in Gilgit to start work on Chilas airfield”

Dawn, October 3, 2018

A seven-member Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) team arrived on October 2 and started initial work on the reconstruction and renovation of the long neglected and dilapidated Chilas airfield as the airstrip was crucial for construction of Diamer-Bhasha dam. The seven-member team, formed by the CAA to initiate the project and headed by Ubaidur Rehman Abbasi, the chief operating officer of the CAA, arrived here and started the initial work.

The team will visit Chilas on October 3 to hold meetings with Wapda and local government officials. Chilas airfield consists of a runway of (4500×100) which was built by British rulers in 1927. After the independence, it was developed by the Frontier Works’ Organisation to support the construction of Karakoram Highway. Pakistan Air Force flew C-130 planes from there in late 1960 and early 70s. The all-weather airstrip is situated 160 kilometres from Gilgit town and its functioning would resolve the crucial weather issue which normally disrupts air travel in northern areas.

Ghulam Abbas, "Young GB nationalist exposes 'plot' against CPEC"

Pakistan Today, October 6, 2018

In a surprising revelation, a young nationalist has exposed a 'plot' against the multi-billion dollar China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) in Gilgit-Baltistan (GB). Addressing a press conference in Gilgit on October 6, Afaq Ahmed, who remained associated with several nationalist parties like Balawaristan National Front (BNF) Abdul Hameed Group and Balawaristan National Students Organisation (BNSO), claimed that the "people working for foreign elements tried to make him their part".

Imaduddin Ahmed, "Seismic costs"

Dawn, October 7, 2018

When considering investment in an infrastructure project, responsible investors or donors would ask: what is the need? What are the financial, social and environmental costs? What are the risks and the unknowns? Is the project likely to yield higher costs than benefits? Is the project the best option to address the need? Pakistan's judiciary and government have called upon Pakistanis to invest in the Diamer-Basha and Mohmand Dam Fund, and yet they have insufficiently addressed these questions. The Supreme Court's online appeal is not accompanied by a feasibility study. From the outside looking in, this is a red flag. Mega projects are inherently political, according to Andrew Edkins, UCL professor of the management of complex projects. Harvard international development professor Lant Pritchett predicts that policy advocates withhold information about a project's effectiveness when they believe this information would deter support; they instead use emotive rhetoric to hoodwink prospective supporters. One cannot doubt the sincerity of the new government or the judiciary. One does wonder, however, at the politics of the policy advocates.

Pakistanis should demand answers to hard questions before they part with their money.

Masud Ahmed, “The mystery of Silk Road through Gilgit-Baltistan”

Daily Times, October 8, 2018

There is a story before the birth of Christ, a Chinese named Chang Chien was sent on a mission to the western region of China by Emperor Wu-Ti. This journey is considered one of the most important missions in history as it resulted in birth of the Silk Road. Another important discovery was Ferghana (Uzbekistan) and its fast, large and powerful horses as compared to the weaker and slower Chinese horses. The emperor realised that Ferghana horses would be ideal for cavalry warfare against the troublemaking Huns. Chang is the person who opened routes westwards linking imperial China with Imperial Rome and he is described as the father of Silk Road. Silk route in Chinese is translated is ‘SichouZhi Lu’ and in Uyghur ‘YipekYdi’. Silk was a major form of currency for some early Chinese dynasties and was also used for soldiers’ salaries. During the Tang dynasty (618-907 CE) when facing economic difficulties and unable to mint bronze coins, three commodities were recognised as currency; bronze coins, grains and silk. Soldiers stationed in the North West region of China were paid in silk. The Chinese were indeed the first people in the world to make silk as early as 4000 BC. Besides silk, chemicals, spices, metals and leather products, glass and paper were also common trade commodities. China bound caravans were laden with gold, woolen and textiles, ivory, amber, precious stones which was not manufactured in China until the Fifth Century.

Ghulam Abbas, “NAB to probe ‘graft’ in land acquisition for Diamer-Bhasha Dam”

Pakistan Today, October 12, 2018

The National Accountability Bureau (NAB) had decided to investigate the alleged financial embezzlement of billions of rupees in the land acquisition process for the Diamer-Bhasha Dam project, Pakistan Today has learnt. According to sources, the anti-graft body has initiated a probe into the land acquisition process which may or may not have been as transparent as claimed by the previous governments. Although the officials at the bureau did not confirm the development, sources claimed that the NAB has started collecting documents/data and evidence of the land purchase process which was started in 2007 and continued till 2015. Residents of the area have been demanding an investigation against the land acquisition process as the influential and ‘corrupt’ government officials had allegedly pocketed billions of rupees by showing the land’s value as high.

As per the initial findings of the investigation, sources claim, a large sum from the national kitty was allegedly siphoned off through the purchase of private land at extraordinarily high rates. In several cases, the payment of one-acre land for the Bhasha Dam had been made around Rs 10 million (one crore for one acre), whereas the actual rate of the land, consisting of mountains and rocks, is hardly one lac rupees (Rs0.1 million), they added.

“Gilgit-Baltistan, legality & Kashmir issue”

Pakistan Observer, October 18, 2018

While a tyrant occupier India euphorically claims the Vale as an integral part of India, New Delhi unjustifiably affiliates the disputed Kashmir sovereignty with Gilgit Baltistan’s region (an integral part of Pakistan). The Modi government levels objections to the CPEC’s development in that region by arguing its stipulated link to the would-be Occupied Kashmir plebiscite. This Indian stance is unacceptable under international law, which rightly argues that if a dispute arises as to sovereignty over a portion of territory where one party has actually displayed sovereignty (Pakistani), it is not enough for the other party (India) to show the sovereignty once existed. On October 04, Pakistani government announced that it will soon fix the constitutional status of Gilgit- Baltistan. Pakistani government has smoothly performed the administrative functions in Gilgit-Baltistan region ever since the partition of Subcontinent in 1947 under the very principle of continuous and peaceful display of the functions of state within a given region, which remains a constituent element of customary international law.

Gilgit-Baltistan is located between Xinjiang Autonomous Region of China, Wakhan Corridor of Afghanistan, the Ladakh region of Indian Occupied Kashmir, Azad Jammu and Kashmir (AJ&K) and Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa province of Pakistan.

Hasnaat Malik, “President Alvi calls for engaging India in water talks”

The Express Tribune, October 19, 2018

President Dr Arif Alvi has urged the Foreign Office and the concerned stakeholders to engage in ‘a constructive dialogue’ with India to achieve bilateral and multilateral arrangements on trans-boundary water matters. “Pakistan should also make efforts towards safeguarding our ‘Water Rights’. Issue(s) pertaining to the Indus Water Treaty (IWT) is one such example. This would require meticulous thinking on our part and engaging with our neighbours to avoid potential conflicts in the future,” said Dr Alvi on October 19. The president was addressing a two-day International Symposium on ‘Creating a Water-Secure Pakistan’ held at the Supreme Court premises. He said about 2 million drought-ridden and impoverished residents of Tharparkar and Cholistan amplified the human side of the problem.

Masud Ahmad Khan, “Future of Gilgit Baltistan”

Daily Times, October 20, 2018

It was the night of 31 October, 1947, when Gilgit Scouts surrounded the house of the dogra governor of Gilgit Brigadier Ghansara Singh. On the morning of 1 November, 1947, governor Brigadier Ghansara Singh surrendered to Gilgit Scouts. It was an auspicious morning when the Dogra flag was pulled down and Pakistan’s flag was raised. Immediately on taking control of Gilgit, the interim setup sent a special courier to Pakistan for taking over the administration of the area. On 3 November, 1947, Dogra and Sikh troops of 6 Jammu and Kashmir Battalion of State Force fled and deserted Bunji Cantt. Subsequently, the liberation forces under the able command of officers of 6th Jammu and Kashmir and Gilgit Scouts liberated the remaining area fighting against the weather, the terrain and logistics.

The people of Gilgit Baltistan are completely loyal to Pakistan as there is no anti Pakistan sentiment or slogan against CPEC. The people of Gilgit Baltistan feel highly privileged in holding Pakistan’s flag as high as possible. At the same time the constitutional status needs to be addressed by the government according to wishes of people of Gilgit Baltistan. A provisional/interim province like status may be given linking it with the final settlement of the Jammu and Kashmir issue. Representation in the National Parliament may be given according to its population by electing three members from each division of Gilgit Baltistan. Proper representation may also be given in National Economic Council (NEC), Council of Interest (CCI) and Indus River System Authority (ISRA) with the power to participate in decision making. We hope that the Prime Minister Imran Khan will steer Gilgit Baltistan in the right direction.

“Diامر-Bhasa dam shouldn’t be politicised like Kalabagh: Hamza Shehbaz”

Ary News, October 20, 2018

The moot was inaugurated yesterday by President Dr Arif Alvi.

Shakil Durrani, “A tale of two dams (Opinion)”

The News, October 22, 2018

Financing the Diامر Basha Dam and Mohmand Dam should never be seen as obstacles. We know that money is never the major constraint; poor resolve is what should be feared. In short then: what is most crucial is spawning ‘the idea’ and thereafter the ‘will to achieve’. These are the real challenges.

Admittedly, the combined cost of the Diامر Basha Dam and Mohmand dams is staggering. The Diامر Basha Dam would cost $14 billion over a construction period of 8-9 years while the Mohmand Dam would take six years at a cost of $3 billion. That is a grand total of Rs1800 billion. The Supreme Court initiated the process of mobilising the people of Pakistan and helped collect five billion rupees so far. However, finding resources should not be problematic.

Dr Nyla Ali Khan, “Realpolitik relegates human rights to the background”

Daily Times, October 23, 2018

It is essential to create a non-militarised, non-militant and humane environment to ensure the rights of citizens to peacefully protest and to be heard by their political representatives. To that end, an environment that ensures all citizens that they have a voice and that their voices will not go unheard must be created.

In any society, when people are in survival mode and trying to avoid being criminalised, to the extent that they are unable to participate in their governments, forces of power, greed and special interests take over. Bigotry and hate are at the root of this violence.

“India’s claim to Gilgit-Baltistan strong: Ram Madhav”

Business Standard, October 26, 2018

India’s claim to the Gilgit-Baltistan region is much stronger than Pakistan’s as it was handed over to the Pakistani army by two “deceitful” British military officials, BJP leader Ram Madhav said on October 25. He said the region was strategically important to India as it provides a link to Afghanistan and further to Central Asia. The Belt Road Initiative of China, which has been opposed by India, also passes through this region, he said.

While Pakistan annexed parts of Jammu and Kashmir, the Gilgit-Baltistan region, then a part of the princely state of J&K, was handed over to the Pakistani army by two “deceitful” British military officials, he said. “Our case, as far as Gilgit Baltistan goes, is even more stronger for the important reason that when (the princely state of) Jammu and Kashmir acceded to India, technically Gilgit Baltistan was an integral part of the then state of Kashmir and Jammu, under Maharaja Hari Singh,” Madhav said. The region was not annexed through any army encroachment, he said. Madhav was speaking at the launch of a book ‘Gilgit Baltistan and its saga of unending human rights violation’. Although under the control of Pakistan, India considers Gilgit-Baltistan a part of the state of Jammu and Kashmir.

Imran Khushal, “Pak-India tensions and life at LoC”

Daily Times, October 27, 2018

Quality of education must be improved and admission criteria at local universities should be relaxed for students from villages along the LoC. As well as, quota for Kashmiri students at Pakistani universities should be redefined in favour of such students and similar measures should be taken in granting scholarships and employment opportunities.

Tensions between Islamabad and New Delhi do not directly affect Pakistanis and Indians as they do Kashmiris, particularly people living across the Line of Control or LoC. Pakistan, that claims Kashmir its ‘shehrug’ (jugular vein), and India, that calls it its “atoot ang” (integral part), seem least bothered how their enmity affects the Kashmiris on either sides. Whether it is a diplomatic crisis between Islamabad and New Delhi or a full-scale war between the two nuclear states it was these people who have suffered most throughout history.

“If you want to construct Dam, G-B has to be taken along: Chief Minister”

Daily Salam, October 4, 2018

In a press conference held in Islamabad, G-B Chief Minister Hafeezur Rehman said that with CPEC and Basha Dam, the importance of the region has increased. You can't think about CPEC and Basha Dam without G-B. Four provinces have decided to construct a dam but where Dam is supposed to be built no one is asking them. If not today but tomorrow voices would emerge on the ownership of the project. Gilgit-Baltistan has a capacity of 50000 MW of electricity. For that reason 2 billion were kept from national grid. For Gilgit-Skardu road, 7 billion were allocated but now 2 billion have been cut from the budget. There was a project for the women's college that has been now halted. Till date only 10 percent of our budget has been released.

“Centre has removed important projects of G-B from the PSDP”

Daily Baad-e-Shimal, October 7, 2018

Development projects in Gilgit-Baltistan are in danger now. For 19 projects 6.5 billion rupees were allocated for the region. Now Central government has decided to cut the development budget. Now out of 6.5 billion the region will only get 55 Crore rupees only. This will result in jeopardizing many on-going projects. Not only that, 2 billion was also cut from the 17 billion allocated for developmental work.

“Want response from the Centre on Sartaj Aziz Committee Report”

Daily K2, October 16, 2018

Supreme Court has asked centre government to present Sartaj Aziz Committee report on Constitutional status of Gilgit-Baltistan within 14 days. Chief Justice Saqib Nisar has said that there is need to address the constitutional appeals regarding G-B's constitutional status. It is a matter of fundamental rights. He asked government to take this issue on priority basis. He further said that if India can give a special status to the 'occupied Kashmir' what's then stopping Pakistan from providing a constitutional identity to the region. People of Gilgit-Baltistan are using Pakistan passport then they should also be given political and other rights said Justice Gulzar. There is a need to highlight the love of people of the region towards Pakistan at international level said Justice Omer Atha.

“Constitutional Status and Assurance from Imran Khan”

Daily K2, October 20, 2018

Prime Minister Imran Khan has again given assurance of granting G-B a constitutional status. He said that discussion regarding it is taking place. While talking with Governor Raja Jalal Maqpoon, Imran Khan said that subsidy of wheat is not being cut. He also said that like other provinces, G-B will get new projects under PSDP and will try best to complete the construction of Basha Dam on time.

Like other political leaders, Imran has also given assurance of providing constitutional status to G-B.

Imran Khan highlighted many issues G-B is facing but most important one is lack of having constitutional identity. Every country has its identity, every nation provide its citizen basic rights. But G-B is the only region in the world where neither international norms are applied nor national laws are implemented. 70 years have passed, people are still begging for the political identity. People are basic rights in return of love they shower on Pakistan. But every time we have been shown only dreams and lies. Every political party has verbally supported granting G-B a constitutional status. Let's see how PTI government fares now in the National Assembly and how other political parties support that move.
